REGISTER OF CITY HOTELS

1893

While reading the Albuquerque, New Mexico, Daily Citizen in compiling a surname index of all names appearing there, it seemed a shame to have readily available at hand a listing of the hotel registrations in all the regular Albuquerque Hotels, and not save and compile that for possible use of tracing persons across the nation. I say "all the regular" hotels because there were several small rooming houses and room and board houses that were not listed.

In making this compilation, I noticed that there were often several different spellings and initials for apparently the same person. I chose not to change any of these so the reader should note those close spellings as possibly being the same person. In many instances, there are one- or two-line news items about a particular person being in town, such as salesmen and some people who were resting from the long, arduous train ride this far and were going on to some distant point.

The compiler has added, in many instances, the state where the residence was located, since many of those in New Mexico are now ghost towns and would be unknown to most researchers today. In the case of towns where there could be some question, I have not added the state. An example is La Junta, where there is today a popular La Junta, Colorado, but in 1890 there was a La Junta, New Mexico, that was fairly well-known at that time, although it is no longer to be found.

And the researcher is CAUTIONED that it appears many, many people, when signing the hotel register, entered the name of the city they were coming FROM and not necessarily where they lived. Therefore, a person may appear to be from several different cities, but it is not clear to the compiler just which city was their home.

Happy hunting,

Howard W. Henry, Compiler
